

St Peters, Joslin Precinct Access Study

Project Update

The St Peters, Joslin Precinct Access Study covers the area bordered by Lower Portrush Road, Payneham Road, Stephen Terrace, and the River Torrens. The aim of the study is to assess road improvements to enhance safety, amenity, and local access for all users.

The key aims of the study are to:

- Seek feedback from the community on how people access or travel through the study area.

- Assess traffic movement and requirements into and out of the study area.

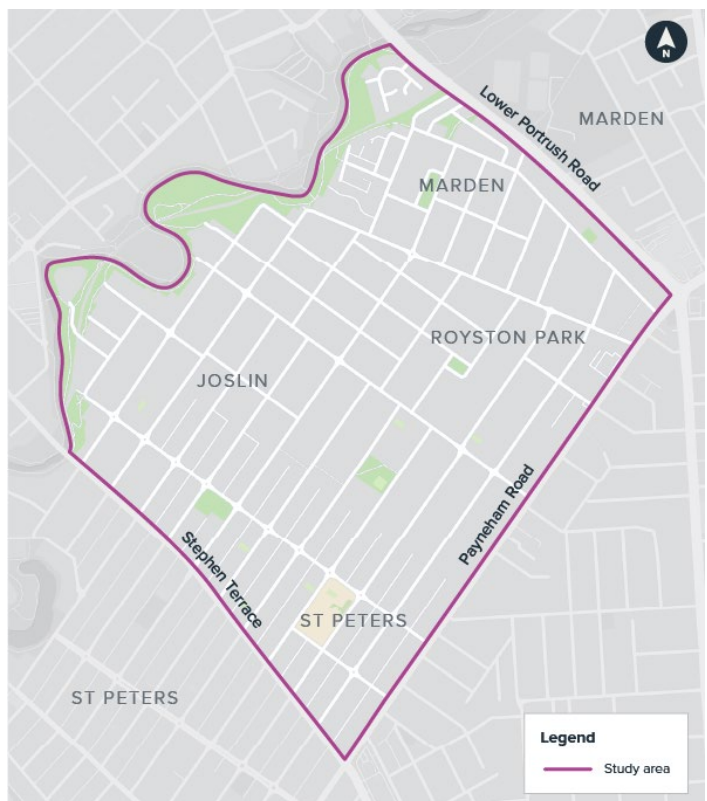

- Evaluate the location and frequency of safe road crossings for active travel.

- Assess bus movement across Stephen Terrace at Sixth Avenue.

- Assess the traffic network within the study area for alignment with the goals of the South Australian Transport Strategy for a safe, connected, accessible, liveable, sustainable and resilient transport system.

Community Engagement

Feedback from the community will help us gain important local views on any areas for potential improvement at this location. Community feedback, along with technical analysis, will be an important part of planning for any future upgrades and improvements in the area.

As well as seeking local feedback, we will also undertake a range of activities to collect and analyse data to better understand existing conditions of the area. A short survey has been developed for you to share your thoughts and better understand your experiences when travelling through the area.

We invite you to share your thoughts and views as part of the St Peters, Joslin Precinct Access Study. Access to the survey is available on the study website <https://dit.sa.gov.au/joslin> (closing COB Monday 17 November 2025).

What's Next
